

ACTL Principles of Instrumental and Vocal Teaching Level 4 Diploma

Are you an independent music teacher looking to upskill, but don't want to incur university fees?

Principles of Instrumental and Vocal Teaching provides evidence that candidates understand the main principles involved in instrumental/vocal teaching in the context of individual or small group lessons. It's based on documented experience, personal research and critical reflection as well as an understanding of relevant protocol and legislation, and is equivalent to studying one year of an undergraduate degree.

<hero video>

<key facts>

Empowering individuals by offering accredited, accountable, and enjoyable music education

At MLC, we're dedicated to helping independent music teachers like you undertake CPD at a reasonable cost, yet still achieve academic standards of excellence.

The ACTL is a teaching qualification for independent teachers who want to add a level of credibility and authority to their offering.

All of our course teachers are members of the team at MLC - all of which are either graduates of the level 6 diploma or higher, and we've worked with some of the best in the industry.

<Enquire today>

Course Content/How it works/Entry Requirements/Fees and Booking

<testimonials>

Experts in music teaching

Our course tutors have decades of experience in the music industry and are well placed to support you with your professional goals . We have an international presence, delivering courses to students in the UK, France, Italy, Brazil, New Zealand, Dubai and Russia. Learn more about the MLC Team.

86% cheaper than university, with the same high academic standards

At university, you can expect to pay around £42,000 for a typical degree. The average cost of our courses here at MLC is £6,000, without compromising on quality of learning or high academic standards.

The Music Teaching Diploma allows you to:

- Execute collaborate work effectively at a professional level, adjusting based on self evaluation
- Learn how to present concepts originally and support student's creativity
- Develop knowledge of music and a variety of different styles
- Understand the material in relation to grade music examinations
- Gain a practical awareness of how to engage effectively with a wide range of music students by being sensitive to their needs
- Demonstrate a secure and confident command of music theory and practice
- Plan goals that are evidence based, with the ability to critically reflect on practice

Stand out from the crowd

Music teaching is an increasingly competitive and regulated space.

After completing the ACTL Principles of Instrumental and Vocal Teaching Level 4 Diploma course, you'll:

- ❖ Have a qualification recognised in over 80 countries
- ❖ Be entitled to use ACTL after your name (Association of Trinity College London)
- ❖ Have the opportunity to work with MLC as a teacher

"A diploma in music teaching illustrates that you have the ability and commitment to finishing something that you have started, together with having developed an understanding of health and safety, best practice, current legislation, planning and delivery" - Paul Hose, Course co-creator

<Register your interest>